

Rusk Endorses Statement:

'U. S. Could Crush Soviets In N-War'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk stamped full government endorsement Sunday on an address in which Deputy Secretary of Defense Roswell L. Gilpatric said the United States could crush the Soviet Union with nuclear might.

"Mr. Gilpatric was making an official statement," Rusk said. "It was a well considered statement and it was based upon the facts. . . . We are not dealing in the world these days from a position of weakness."

Rusk said he went over the talk with Gilpatric and discussed it with him before he made it. It was delivered Saturday night before a group of business executives in Hot Springs, Va.

Rusk, speaking on a television interview (ABC—Issues and Answers), would not say Gilpatric's firm words represent a new estimation of American strength or Russian weakness. But he said it does represent "the situation as we see it today."

Rusk said there ought to be more public understanding that the American position had hardened in its approach to a Berlin settlement. He said both President Kennedy in an address last July 25, and Gilpatric Saturday night, made the American position clear.

Gilpatric said among other things that this country "has a nuclear retaliatory force of such lethal power that an enemy move which brought it into play would be an act of self-destruction on his part."

Gilpatric said the United States has "tens of thousands" of vehicles for delivering its nuclear punch, and mentioned 600 heavy bombers, many more medium bombers, six Polaris missile subs now at sea and many land-based weapons.

Gilpatric's statement and Rusk's open endorsement of it seemed obviously aimed at countering the public impression made by Khrushchev's tough talk over his demands for a settlement of the Berlin crisis.

Not Important

Rusk said too much importance should not be attached to Khrushchev's offer at the 22nd Soviet party congress, now under way in Moscow, to withdraw his year-end deadline on solving the Berlin issue.

Rusk said the Soviet premier's remarks on this, Southeast Asia, and the Congo were "rather broad." Underlying them, he said, is "the central notion that he—Khrushchev—expects the world to embrace his plans for world revolution."

Rusk said he could not find any basis for relaxing world tension in Khrushchev's statements and doubted any Western summit meeting would be required to hammer out a mutually acceptable negotiating position on Berlin.

Asked if a high-level Allied conference would be needed to resolve Western differences on a negotiating approach, Rusk said: "Well, I would doubt that an Allied summit would be required for that purpose. In the first place there is basic agreement on the essentials in the question of Germany and Berlin, and we are in daily consultation with them. It may be that meetings of one sort or another might in fact develop, but there are no present plans for such meetings and this would not be necessary in order to get the four governments in very close touch with each other and indeed to get the NATO alliance unified through consultation in the North Atlantic Council in Paris."

Police Hunt For Clues In Two Killings

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (AP)—Police, with little to go on, renewed their efforts Sunday to solve the murder of Joseph Licata, 77, and his 72-year-old wife, Katherine. The two were shot to death in their home Friday night. The bodies were found Saturday morning by a lodger.

Police were puzzled about a motive, since there was no indication of burglary and the television room where the Licatas were killed hadn't been ransacked. A handbag with more than $60 was found in the room.

Licata was slumped in a chair, facing the television set. His wife lay a short distance away, face down in an archway separating the television and the dining rooms.

Police said they apparently were surprised by their attacker and shot down before they could move.

Some small caliber bullets were found, but there were no cartridge shells. No gun was located.

The bodies were found Saturday morning by a lodger, Helen Patello. Miss Patello and two other two lodgers reported they heard nothing the night before.

While Hunting Deer In Idaho

Snow Strands Hundreds

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (AP)—The last of several hundred stranded deer hunters were battling their way from the mountains of southern Idaho Sunday as an unexpectedly heavy snowstorm swept eastward toward the main Rocky Mountain area.

The storm, which struck late Saturday, dumped snow up to two feet deep across southern Idaho, northern Nevada and Utah, before moving on into Wyoming.

There were no confirmed reports of hunter injuries or serious hardships due to the storm.

But in eastern Idaho two young women were killed in separate automobile accidents on ice-slick highways.

The biggest concentration of stranded hunters was in the mountains south of Twin Falls, in south-central Idaho, and south of Burley, Idaho, adjacent to the Utah state line.

Several hundred hunters were

Woman Dies As Roof Of Movie Collapses

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The roof of a neighborhood movie house in East New Orleans collapsed Sunday night with "a noise like a big drum," killing one elderly woman and injuring a dozen or more.

Policemen said a dozen injured had been sent to Charity Hospital, but St. Claude General Hospital reported receiving two injured and Mercy Hospital reported one.

Amid the howl of sirens, the mutter of several thousand curious spectators and the sweep of searchlights, firemen dug with picks into a one-foot thick carpet of concrete spread like a four-foot blanket over about three-fourths of the seats in the Nola theater.

Mrs. Helen Miller, who lives nearby, said: "I've seen at least 15 people carried out already and many of them seem to be unconscious."

Onetime Slave Dies At Age 110

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—A long and eventful life ended Saturday for Benjamin Trimble, a onetime slave who took up golf when he was 105.

He died in a nursing home at the age of 110.

Trimble took his first golfing lesson from Edgar N. Eisenhower, Tacoma attorney and elder brother of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Trimble, born May 10, 1851, in Faircastle, Va., used to describe seeing his father sold at a slave auction before the Civil War.

Murderer, 44 Scheduled To Die Tonight

HARRISBURG (AP)—Time is growing short for Arthur G. Schuck, condemned murderer who lived on borrowed time during a legislative debate on the merits of capital punishment.

Schuck, 44, of Baden, Beaver County, is scheduled to die in the electric chair at Rockview in Centre County Monday night, the first man to be executed in Pennsylvania since October, 1959.

The U.S. Supreme Court last Friday refused to review Schuck's conviction in the "mistaken identity" slaying of Vincent Quigley in April 1958.

The Pennsylvania Supreme Court previously had upheld the conviction and sentence.

Schuck originally was scheduled to be electrocuted last Jan. 30. But one day after the state pardons board turned down a plea for clemency the U.S. District court in Pittsburgh on Jan. 28 granted a stay pending a hearing for a writ of habeas corpus.

The Federal court dismissed the petition on May 13, but by that time Gov. Lawrence had declared a moratorium on all executions pending the outcome of legislation to repeal the death penalty.

After the bill was decisively defeated, Lawrence rescheduled Schuck's execution for the coming week. Executions usually are held on Monday nights.

The perennial movement to abolish capital punishment began with the introduction of repeal legislation in the opening days of the 1961 General Assembly.

After it picked up important supporters, including House Speaker H. G. Andrews, nine senators introduced a resolution calling for public hearings. It was approved.

A select committee headed by Sen. Benjamin R. Donolow, D-Philadelphia, a lawyer specializing in criminal cases, held a series of hearings in Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Harrisburg.

Fails On Curve

According to the report of the Pennsylvania State Police of the Milford station, Miss Kovacs was driving the car north on Route 209, when she failed to negotiate a gradual curve in the road, went off on the shoulder of the highway and crashed into a power pole which parallels the roadway. The car was partly turned over when it struck the pole, as the entire impact of the crash was on the top of the vehicle just in front of the windshield. The power pole was torn off about ten feet from the top.

Both of the girls were thrown clear of the car by the impact of the crash and died instantly, according to the report. The highway at the point of the accident is two-lane concrete with a long gradual curve. On the shoulder side of the northbound lane, there is a sharp dropoff from the concrete surface to the shoulder.

Lost Control

Apparently, when the car left the roadway, the driver lost control and could not regain the roadway, the car then swerved further to the right until it crashed into the pole.

The girls, both of whom were students at Keystone Junior College, La Plume, Pa., had picked up the car at Miss Kovacs' home in Bethlehem, and were en route to the United States Military Academy at West Point, N. Y., to visit some friends.

The accident was investigated by Sgt. Harold Casper and Troopers John McCarthy and Fred Koppinger of the Milford Substation.

Rayburn Seen As 'Less Alert'

DALLAS, Tex., (AP)—Doctors calling for House Speaker Sam Rayburn said late Sunday he "appears to be weaker and less alert than he has been recently."

The 79-year-old Texas Democrat is ill with incurable cancer. He entered Baylor Hospital Oct. 2. The bulletin said: "Mr. Rayburn's condition this afternoon is not as good as it has been. He appears to be weaker and less alert than he has been recently. He is not having any particular discomfort. It is felt at present that this does not represent a major or critical change. His condition remains serious."

Authorities Learn Identities Of Trio Hunted In Holdup

THE SEARCH for three colored men that robbed the West End Branch of the Monroe Security Bank and Trust Co., Friday in Brodheadville has been narrowed down to a trio from Florida.

The entire Eastern coast has been alerted for:

Robert (Bobby) Cole, 21, of Haines City, Fla., five feet, 10½ inches tall, 160 pounds, black kinky hair and a small moustache. Jimmy Lee (Flattop) Nickliff, 21, of Pompano Beach, Fla., five feet, eight-inches tall, 179 pounds, husky build, black kinky hair and wearing a gray cap with visor. John Dixon, 23, five feet, eight-inches tall, 182 pounds, smooth skin and kinky hair. He is from Pompano Beach, Fla.

These men became suspects of the police after a car believed to be the get-away car was found on the Koehler farm, about two and one-half miles west of Saylorsburg. The car was found in a heavily wooded area.

Owner of Vehicle
Police said the Pea green, 1960 Ford was owned by Harry Bonser of Martins Creek. It was stolen early Friday morning from Bel-fast along Route 115 just south of Wind Gap.

Recovery of the car led to identification of the suspects. The names resulted from an intensive investigation by State Police and FBI agents.

The three men identified are believed to have been migrant farm workers in the west end of Monroe County.

Saturday morning three men were reported to police after being seen riding a train that came into Nazareth from Pen Argyl.

Police fired several shots as the men fled from the scene and headed for a cornfield. More than 50 municipal and State police ringed the area and searched until 2 a.m. before calling off the hunt. They resumed the hunt again at day-break.

Lift Road Blocks
Police said the roadblocks in four counties — Monroe, Carbon, Northampton and Lehigh — were lifted Saturday afternoon. Every major highway in the counties had been under surveillance since the robbery was reported Friday at 10:45 a.m.

It was learned that after the 1960 robbery police and FBI had drawn up a plan to put into effect if the West End bank was ever hit again. The plan was to have a code word or letter to be broadcast and troopers would automatically take up positions on the highways to set up roadblocks.

State Police said that Trooper Joseph Wackala, Fern Ridge barracks, had made the usual morning check of the bank just 15 minutes before the robbery occurred. That was at 10:30 a.m.

Driver Loses Bus, 3 Times

CHICAGO (AP)— City bus driver Paul Braxton lingered over a cup of coffee Sunday and missed his bus.

A little early for work, Braxton left the bus parked at the terminal and stepped into a nearby cafe for coffee. He returned to see the 51-passenger bus lumbering away.

The bus banged into a light pole and stalled. But, before Braxton reached it—the bus lurched on. It was spotted a few minutes later, about six blocks away. But it again eluded capture and disappeared.

The big bus was finally found more than a mile from the terminal on a parking lot, empty

Showdown May Result In Albania, Soviet Dispute

By BORIS BOSKOVIC
BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)—The dispute between little Albania and the giant Soviet Union was seen by students of Communist affairs here as foreshadowing a dramatic showdown that might influence the world situation.

The showdown might be even more dramatic than the one in 1948 when independent-minded Communist Yugoslavia was kicked out of the Communist family by Stalin, informants said Sunday.

However, the difference is enormous. In 1948, Yugoslavia stood alone and was not backed by any other ruling Communist party. Now, Albania enjoys strong support from Red China. Albania alone supports Red China's thesis that war with imperialism is inevitable, as opposed to Soviet theory that peaceful coexistence is possible.

Opinion Of Experts

In the opinion of experts on Communist affairs here, the Soviet-Albanian conflict, which came into the open when Premier Khrushchev attacked Albania for its Stalinism, is in fact a Soviet-Chinese conflict in which China uses Albania.

The fact that Khrushchev decided to publicly denounce Albanian leadership at the Soviet Communist party congress in Moscow was seen as an indication that the situation has become so grave that the Soviet leader had to bring it up, even at the risk of a public quarrel with Red China.

Stroudsburg Lions Have An Extensive Charity Program

THE STROUDSBURG Lions Club reported at its last meeting that $6,600 was raised to finance club charities programs throughout the year.

The final report of the fund-raising project was made at the dinner meeting which was held in the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

Also conducted during the meeting was the awarding of perfect attendance pins to a number of Lion members. Honored were: William P. Deering, John Dunkelberger, Dr. Henry Maxwell, Harold N. Miller, Henry Reader, John Regan, Harold Snyder and T. Manning Curtis.

Britain And Her Partners Expect Clash At Singapore

LONDON (AP) — Britain and its Commonwealth partners in Southeast Asia are heading to a clash over the British base at Singapore.

Government officials express the view that radical changes in Britain's defense strategy will be needed to reach a settlement.

Difficulties have arisen out of the movement toward a greater Malaysia. This project launched by Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman of Malaysia would link his own federation with Singapore and the three Borneo territories of North Borneo, Brunei and Sarawak.

Both Rahman and Singapore Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew have served notice that if the merger comes off Britain will be barred from using the Singapore base to fulfill its commitments to the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization. The eight-nation SEATO, sponsored by the big Western powers, was created to repel Red aggression.

The Foreign Office said Britain intends to honor commitments to the SEATO allies. A spokesman said the need to fulfill these obligations will be pointed out in coming talks about the future of Singapore and other Southeast Asian territories.

These talks will begin early in November when Rahman flies here for meetings with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan on the Malaysia venture. Separate conferences with Singapore leaders and the Borneo territories are likely to follow early in the new year.

Up to now Britain has had unrestricted use of the huge naval base facilities at Singapore, a self-ruling state whose defenses and foreign affairs still are handled by Britain.

Rahman agrees the base still may be used to protect Singapore itself and meet Britain's obligations to Malaysia under their mutual defense treaty. But he objects to any regional use of the base that helps Britain meet its commitments to SEATO.

A sweeping revision of these functions would be called for if the new Malaysia insisted on barring Singapore's use for SEATO purposes either in war or peace.

In fact, British defense planners already are engaged on a full review of the country's entire defense system—including the future of such conventional fixed bases as Singapore in the age of nuclear weapons.

The idea of self-contained, continually mobile fleets is getting close study. Thus in an emergency the British navy—its strike and supply arms—would put to sea and operate independent of bases.

Results of the study will be outlined in a defense White Paper early next year.

The Macmillan government has come out broadly in support of the Malaysia project provided it takes in the Borneo territories.

Two factors shape British policy. First is the fear that an independent Singapore, where Chinese make up 75 per cent of the population, might one day turn from its old Commonwealth partners toward the Communist bloc.

Second is the realization that a Malayan-Singapore union would upset the existing racial balance and give the Chinese a small majority over the Malaysians in the combined population. Both these fears also have been voiced by Malaya's leaders.

Vehicle Operators Decrease By 871 In Monroe County

Record Harrisburg Bureau HARRISBURG — The number of licensed motor vehicle operators in Monroe County decreased by 871 last year, a check with the State Department of Revenue revealed today. Records of the department show that during 1960 the number of Monroe County licensed as motor vehicle operators totaled 22,666 as compared with 23,537 in the preceding year. Passenger car registrations in the county in 1960 also showed a decline, dropping from 16,349 in 1959 to 15,564 last year. Commercial vehicle registrations in the county dropped from 2709 to 2642.

Passenger and commercial registration decreases were due mainly to deleting station wagon registrations from two categories and classifying them as "suburban" registrations. Suburban registrations last year totaled 1714.

Motorcycle registrations inched upward from 129 to 132 while motor bus registrations remained stable at 56. Miscellaneous tags issued for county residents totaled 1071 last year as compared with 1039 in 1959.

Fees paid by Monroe County for all types of vehicular registrations last year amounted to $408,427.48 — up $31,080.25 from 1959. Passenger car registration fees in the county provided the biggest single type of fee receipts, totaling $149,176.36 during the year.

Commercial vehicle registration fees were next at $124,541.90 followed by operators license fees at $45,331.37. Miscellaneous tags last year brought in revenue receipts of $32,907.94; suburban registrations amounted to $17,136.26; motor bus registrations, $6,880.24, and motorcycle fees, $491.36.

Study Shows JFK Has Made 50,770 Appointments So Far

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy made 50,770 executive appointments in his first nine months in office, a check of nominations sent to the Senate disclosed Sunday.

While the bulk of these dealt with appointments or promotions in the armed services, Kennedy proposed a change in personnel status for 3,500 civilian officers. Many among the civilians were replaced by the administration but others, particularly in the foreign service, received original appointments or promotions.

The 50,770 total compared with 45,562 nominations submitted to the Senate in 1960 by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower. Because Democratic leaders were hoping for a change in White House control, they left 992 of these unconfirmed, in addition to 22 Eisenhower had withdrawn.

Kennedy's batting average this year was better. Only 338 of the appointments he submitted went unacted upon. However, he ran up his total of withdrawals to 1,271 by calling back 1,243 postmaster nominations that Eisenhower had submitted to the new Congress before he left office on Jan. 20.

Kennedy got 703 postmaster appointments confirmed and 151 nominations in this field were left hanging when Congress quit in September.

In the field of civilian nominations, which includes Cabinet members, federal judges, U.S. attorneys and customs collectors, as well as foreign service officers, Kennedy won confirmation of 3,490 appointees.

He withdrew 28 nominations and 82 other appointments went over until the session opening in January.

Some of these holdovers are likely to stir up controversy. Kennedy's appointment of Thurgood Marshall of New York, Negro integrationist leader, as a circuit court judge is one of these.

There have been indications that the American Bar Association might oppose the appointment of Sarah T. Hughes as judge of the northern district of Texas because of her age, 63.

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., has raised an issue of the qualifications of Republican John A. McConne to head the Central Intelligence Agency. Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois has praised McConne's experience and qualifications.

Three Cars Are Involved In Accident

A THREE-CAR chain reaction accident on Route 611 was investigated yesterday afternoon by Assistant Chief of Police Lester Rice, Stroud Township. There were no injuries.

He identified the drivers as Walter Kalita, Union, N.J.; Walter W. Kalowsky, 24, Jermyn, and George G. Larrison, 24, of Phillipsburg, N.J.

Rice said the cars were traveling south on Route 611 and Kalita had stopped for traffic. Kalowsky was also stopped in back of the first car when Larrison struck him and knocked the second car into the rear of the first vehicle.

Damage was estimated at $300 to the Kalita car, $500 to the Kalowsky vehicle and $150 to the Larrison car. He will continue the investigation today.

N. J. Doctor Will Go On Trial Today

CAMDEN, N. J. (AP)—Dr. Albert L. Weiner, 43-year-old osteopathic physician of nearby Eton, is scheduled to go on trial Monday charged with manslaughter.

The charges were lodged after 15 of his patients died of serum hepatitis, a liver disease transmitted by improperly sterilized hypodermic needles or through infection of blood products which have hepatitis in them.

Thirty-six other persons got the disease but survived. Five of those who died were Pennsylvanians; the others were New Jersey residents.

Norman Heine, Camden County prosecutor, says he expects to call as many as 150 witnesses, and that the trial probably will last from five to seven weeks.

The prosecution indicates it will argue that Weiner, who specializes in psychiatry, was criminally negligent in the way he treated his patients. Weiner's attorneys say they will deny negligence of any kind.

One lawyer, Louis J. Pantages also represents Weiner in a dozen or so civil cases, which have been filed in state and federal courts in New Jersey and Pennsylvania. All these suits, seeking damages, are pending, since they grew out of the criminal charges.

The state hasn't specified the degree of manslaughter in its charges, but Heine indicated it will seek an involuntary manslaughter conviction.

New Jersey started an investigation of serum hepatitis among Weiner's patients about a year ago. His license to practice was suspended in November, 1960. The outbreak of the disease was announced publicly last January. Weiner was indicted May 1 on 15 counts of manslaughter.

Two months ago the state board of medical examiners permitted him to resume practice, but directed him not to use injections, pending the outcome of the legal proceedings. The board's authorization complied with a ruling of the state Superior Court, upheld by the New Jersey Supreme Court.

If convicted, Weiner could face penalties of up to 10 years in prison, or a fine of $10,000, or both, on each of the 15 counts—a maximum of 150 years imprisonment and $15,000 fine.

What's Different About THE CATHOLIC CHURCH?

Even from the outside, you can see that the Catholic Church is different from all others.

And it is easy to mistakenly imagine that the chief difference is in the things that can be seen...the clergy, the Sacraments, the forms of devotion, and Catholic respect for the authority of the Pope.

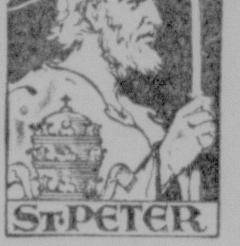

But the thing that makes the Catholic Church unique is this: It claims to be the True Church of Christ...and the only one.

This claim is often resented, and sometimes ridiculed, by honest and devout people of other faiths. They regard it as an evidence of Catholic arrogance...an affront to their own sincerely-held convictions...

a scheme of the Catholic Hierarchy to destroy other church bodies.

The plain fact is, of course, that the Catholic Church has made this same claim during the reign of Peter, the first Pope, nearly 2,000 years ago, and has continued to do so down through the centuries. It was obviously not designed, therefore, to offend present-day Christian church bodies.

Christians generally agree that there can be only one True Church. And for the first 15 centuries of Christendom, a reference to "the Church" meant only one thing to Christians everywhere—the Catholic Church. Today there are hundreds of church bodies professing to be Christian, yet differing from one another in basic doctrine, forms of worship, and attitude toward the authority of the church.

This creates a bewildering problem for those seeking Christ's True Church. And we have no desire to criticize or offend those who sincerely make a choice different from our own. But we are happy—yes, eager, in fact—to explain why nearly 400 millions of people today accept the Catholic Church as the True Church, just as our Christian forefathers did in apostolic times.

You may not agree with Catholic teachings and beliefs, even after reading the powerful evidence we are prepared to submit. But if you are confused...and feel that you have not found the True Church...we invite you to investigate the Catholic claim and decide for yourself in your own good conscience.

This Message Sponsored by Father Butler Council No. 4084, East Stroudsburg, Pa.

With the formal dedication of the local section of the Thruway by Governor David Lawrence this morning, The Stroudsburgs and the Pocono Mountain area in general will have taken another step forward in supporting this section as a suitable place for vacationists, industrial activity, and everyday happy living.

When the bypass roadway is finally opened to traffic at a future date, it will eliminate one of the annoying traffic bottlenecks in the section. For many years, motorists avoided the area because it was so difficult to pass through during peak seasonal traffic.

The new section of road is, of course, only a small section of a major network of modern highways that are being constructed all over the Commonwealth, but its intrinsic importance to The Stroudsburgs goes far deeper than that.

With the improved traveling conditions resulting from the new roadway, traffic that has shunned our beautiful area for years will once again be coming through. It will have a vast impact on the economic and social life of Monroe County in general, for where there are thousands of people traveling into or even through, there is greatly diversified business.

The Stroudsburgs are in a key position for highway travel in all directions. When the planned New Jersey section of the interstate highway is completed, it will be a short and almost straight shot into the George Washington Bridge and metropolitan New York. The completed road will connect with superhighways going east and west, north and south in one of the broadest highway expansion programs ever attempted.

As Governor Lawrence dedicates the new roadway this morning, residents of The Stroudsburgs should be mindful of the benefits that will accrue to the area—and be thankful for them.

Two Terms For Governor

Under the present limitation that restricts them to only one four-year term, Pennsylvania governors have great difficulty formulating and carrying out effective governmental programs. The tenure should be changed, as proposed in a constitutional amendment to be voted upon in November, so that they could succeed themselves for an additional term.

It takes at least one year for a governor to learn the details of his office and adjust himself to the vast powers it confers. The last two years are considered "lame-duck" years because the governor loses power as legislators and politicians turn their attention to the next probable occupant of the executive mansion.

State government has become so complex and far-reaching that it needs greater continuity and longer leadership on the part of its chief executives. The danger that a governor might build up a personal organization from which he could not be dislodged appears far less than the danger of hamstringing effective administration by limiting governors to only one four-year term.

The New Eisenhower

I find ex-Presidents more interesting than Presidents. Certainly Herbert Hoover has risen in stature, in thought, in independence since he has been an ex-President. Harry Truman was always a salty personality but he has a better understanding of the world today than he had as President of the United States.

Dwight D. Eisenhower is quite a surprise. He sounds as though he writes his own speeches, which no President can any longer do. He sounds free, even gay. It is not so much that he can play golf without a television camera being on his heel; it is rather that he has been relieved of the controls of high office and perhaps what is more important, the advice of his underlings. President Kennedy might well watch the development of Eisenhower as ex-President and note how much better a man does when he ceases to be enslaved by his subordinates. The Republican Party requires intellectual and spiritual leadership. It has lost its way in the thirty years since Hoover. Today it is divided into four parts — the followers of Barry Goldwater, the followers of Nelson Rockefeller, the followers of Richard Nixon and those who hope that these three will give them back their party.

Nixon, like Tom Dewey, seems to be eliminating himself. Too astute to run in 1964, his politics would indicate that he is interested in 1968, Nelson Rockefeller is developing a strong sense of humor and is not likely to be trapped into a defeat. Barry Goldwater is building the equivalent of a new party, one which will be able to attract Democrats who are weary of the New Deal, the Fair Deal and the New Frontier and would like to see a party that reminds them of the last days of Al Smith.

Barry Goldwater's strength is not in his emerging leadership within the Republican Party as much as it is in the broad, non-partisan, conservative next generation following which looks upon him not only as a leader but as a prophet.

The re-emergence of Eisenhower complicates an already complex situation. Eisenhower may not run for President again under the Constitutional limit to prevent a third term, but he might develop such political strength that he could name his successor in 1964 and finally in 1968. At any rate, he is moving upon the political stage with more agility than he evidenced when he was President.

Cardinal Spellman's Al Smith Memorial dinner is each year a barometer of political significance. There are usually three speakers, the Mayor of the City of New York, the Governor of the State of New York, and one other. The audience is very mixed, representing the leading persons in the city, without regard to faith or politics.

This year, on this occasion, Mayor Wagner made a good speech, but the audience was cold. In fact, one was startled by its frigidity, for generally speaking, this particular audience is good-natured and generous with applause. Governor Nelson Rockefeller was very human and used the occasion skillfully to give Mayor Wagner's opponent, Louis Lefkowitz, an opportunity for a bow and for applause. But the enthusiastic, spontaneous, exciting applause went to Dwight D. Eisenhower who appeared as a general, not as an ex-President. The audience was back in the days of "We like Ike."

Politically, all this is significant of something, possibly of the resumption of leadership by an ex-President over a very split party. And should that develop into real political strength, Eisenhower's significance will be outstanding during the next years. It will strengthen the position of Nelson Rockefeller.

It is likely to weaken Richard Nixon, because as the last defeated candidate, he cannot compete successfully with the last elected candidate for the usually meaningless titular headship of the Republican Party. In fact, politicians feel that Eisenhower is elbowing Nixon out of the picture.

At the end of the Al Smith dinner, at any rate, Eisenhower elbowed everyone out of the way. He took the applause and the cheers. Naturally, the politicians were not a little surprised that the principal speaker was Eisenhower and not President John F. Kennedy. On a previous occasion, Eisenhower spoke at this dinner when he was President of the United States.

This event is arranged long in advance and the date is not so rigid that the dinner could not have been adjusted to the needs of the President of the United States. There is lots of politics in that.

"Fallout" That Would Be Welcome

The Pennsylvania Story

How 'Off' Are You?

Harrisburg — In two weeks plus one day, Pennsylvanians are going to show just how "off" — or on — they happen to be!

In two weeks and one day, more than five million Pennsylvanians will be eligible to trot to the polls to designate the candidates they want to fill public offices throughout the Keystone State.

How many of this more than 5,000,000 will actually "trot" of course is moot — but on the basis of past elections of this type, the percentage probably will not be high.

The reason of course is that this year is known as one of those "off year" election years — that is, there is nothing on the ticket of tremendously superb not (not importance, — but "note"); no one is running for president, and no one is running for chief of the Uganda tribe.

Political old pros habitually refer to this type of year dearly as an "off year" — a year when voter turnout is low and fundamentally the only offices at stake are "local" offices: the traditional dog catcher, keeper of the village green, etc.

Over the years these local offices — unfortunately and wrongly — have become regarded as piddling affairs of little or no importance. It is somewhat of a paradox that the actual fact is that these local offices are of far greater actual importance to the voters themselves than the great national offices at stake in "on" years!

It is these local offices that hold the key to close-to-home living — school boards, council, county offices and the like. Admittedly such contests don't have the great popular appeal, the overall dramatics, the prestige, the color and the televised hot air of top national contests — but they have the all-important inherent edge that can cut sharply and deeply into the individual hide.

Thus the "off year" election November 7 in all probability will fall into the pattern, but even so there is added "spice" — if it must be called that — in the upcoming fight, insofar as Pennsylvanians are concerned.

In addition to the local contests there are five proposed amendments to the State Constitution up for consideration, and this year actually a statewide contest — the race for a seat on the State Supreme Court, a 21-year term for the winner.

The top court post wasn't scheduled to be up for "sitting" this year; it developed quite unexpectedly with the resignation July 31 of Chief Justice Charles Alvin Jones.

The timing was such that it required an interim appointment by the governor and the setting of the contest on the ballot two weeks hence.

Because of the obvious importance of the highest court in the land and the overall effect decisions of that court usually have on individual and collective living of Pennsylvanians, we have asked these two judicial candidates to turn guest columnist for a day — to expound on their own personal views as to the true "importance" of the court seat contest to Pennsylvanians, and (incidentally) why each believes he (or she) is perhaps best qualified.

The two guest columns by the Supreme Court candidates start tomorrow, with the Democratic candidate, Anne X. Alpern presenting her thoughts. Republican candidate Henry X. O'Brien's column will follow on Wednesday.

Who are these two candidates? Very briefly, Miss Alpern had been Pennsylvania's Attorney General until given her interim appointment by Governor Lawrence. Candidate O'Brien has served as an Allegheny County Common Pleas Court judge since 1947.

Both are eminently qualified for the post, but what each has to say in the next two days may help you decide how to mark your ballot two weeks and a day hence!

Charles E. Rowe, state vice counselor of the Jr. O.U.A.M. from Paradise, was the guest of honor at a banquet in his honor.

How many remember in 1921 when East Stroudsburg merchants closed their stores at 2:30 p.m. and urged their clerks to participate in the Armistice Day Parade?

The West End Republican Club held a meeting in the Blakeslee Community Hall. Robert Femming, candidate for county treasurer, was the speaker.

Try and Stop Me

When Brendan Behan deserted his favorite Dublin pubs for a look-see at New York, an enthusiastic Irish friend high in the police department provided him with an official escort for his first go round the town. One of the policemen remarked, "You being such a celebrity now, Mr. Behan, I guess you're pretty accustomed to having a police escort."

"That I am," agreed Behan with a loud guffaw, "though usually I'm in handcuffs."

Quotes Frances Singer: "How doth the little rumor fly From ear to ear? Idle talk, imagination Groundless fear and titillation — Make him flap his wings and scurry, Spreading, needless, endless worry."

Charley Wagner asked a big TV star the other evening if he knew whose face adorned a ten-thousand dollar bill. "I'll give you three clues," volunteered Wagner (the face is that of Salmon P. Chase). His first name is a fish, his middle initial is a soup, and his last name is what college boys do after girls."

The TV star pondered momentarily, then reached for his wallet. "Mind if I take a peek?" he asked.

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — If you have shown an interest in building a fallout or bomb shelter, don't be surprised if you receive a personal letter from President Kennedy within the next 90 days.

He plans to write every citizen who has made an inquiry to the federal government about shelters or other civil defense problems.

Using a mailing list of eight million as a starter, the President will encourage the receiver to fill out and send to the Defense Department an attached coupon for the latest information on everything from what type of shelter one should build to how one survives after an enemy attack.

The President plans to use the personal letter as a siren to alert individuals at the "grass roots" to the nation's civil defense needs and to stir up support in Congress for a massive increase in funds for the program next year.

The letter is the brain child of Adam Yarmolinsky, special assistant to Secretary of Defense McNamara.

Assigned by the White House to guide the Defense Department's take-over of federal civil defense activities, Yarmolinsky said the President on the idea of the personal approach. The letter is now being drafted by the staff of one of the nation's largest magazine publishing firms in New York.

In addition to the letter, the Madison Avenue firm is preparing a series of high-powered public relations methods for the administration to use in pumping new vigor and interest into the lagging civil defense program. One proposal, already approved by the White House, calls for the President to make a TV-Radio address to the nation outlining his new program and the measures that each individual can take to protect his family in case of a nuclear attack.

While no final decision has been made on the date of the speech, the President will probably deliver it some time late in November or early December.

Big Debate — The President's speech was to have been delivered this month but was postponed when a big controversy broke out among his civil defense advisers on whether his program should call for individuals to concentrate on fallout or bomb shelters.

Also, the President still must make a decision on whether the government should aid the shelter program by direct government subsidies or allowing persons to deduct part of the shelter cost from their income tax.

Final decision in both cases is expected by the President before the end of October.

In his public shelter program, the President plans by February 1 to have designated shelter areas in public and private buildings, mines, and caves suitable for 40 million persons. Once the shelters are marked, the government will begin stocking them with a 10-day supply of water, survival rations and first aid supplies.

Plans are also being made to use postoffices, if not damaged in the attack, as registration points for survivors. The President is putting Postmaster General Day in charge of this program.

Keeping The Peace — Labor Secretary Arthur Goldberg is going to set up another type of forum to keep labor and business peace if he can get top union and management officials to go along.

He plans to organize a group of labor-management committees for major industries.

They would do at the industry level what the President's labor-management advisory committee tries to do at the national level — that is, get each side to understand the other's problems.

Behind Goldberg's new industry committee plan is the same idea that spawned the President's national advisory committee. This is that labor & management will get along better if company officials and union leaders meet in a calm atmosphere and talk on a high plane.

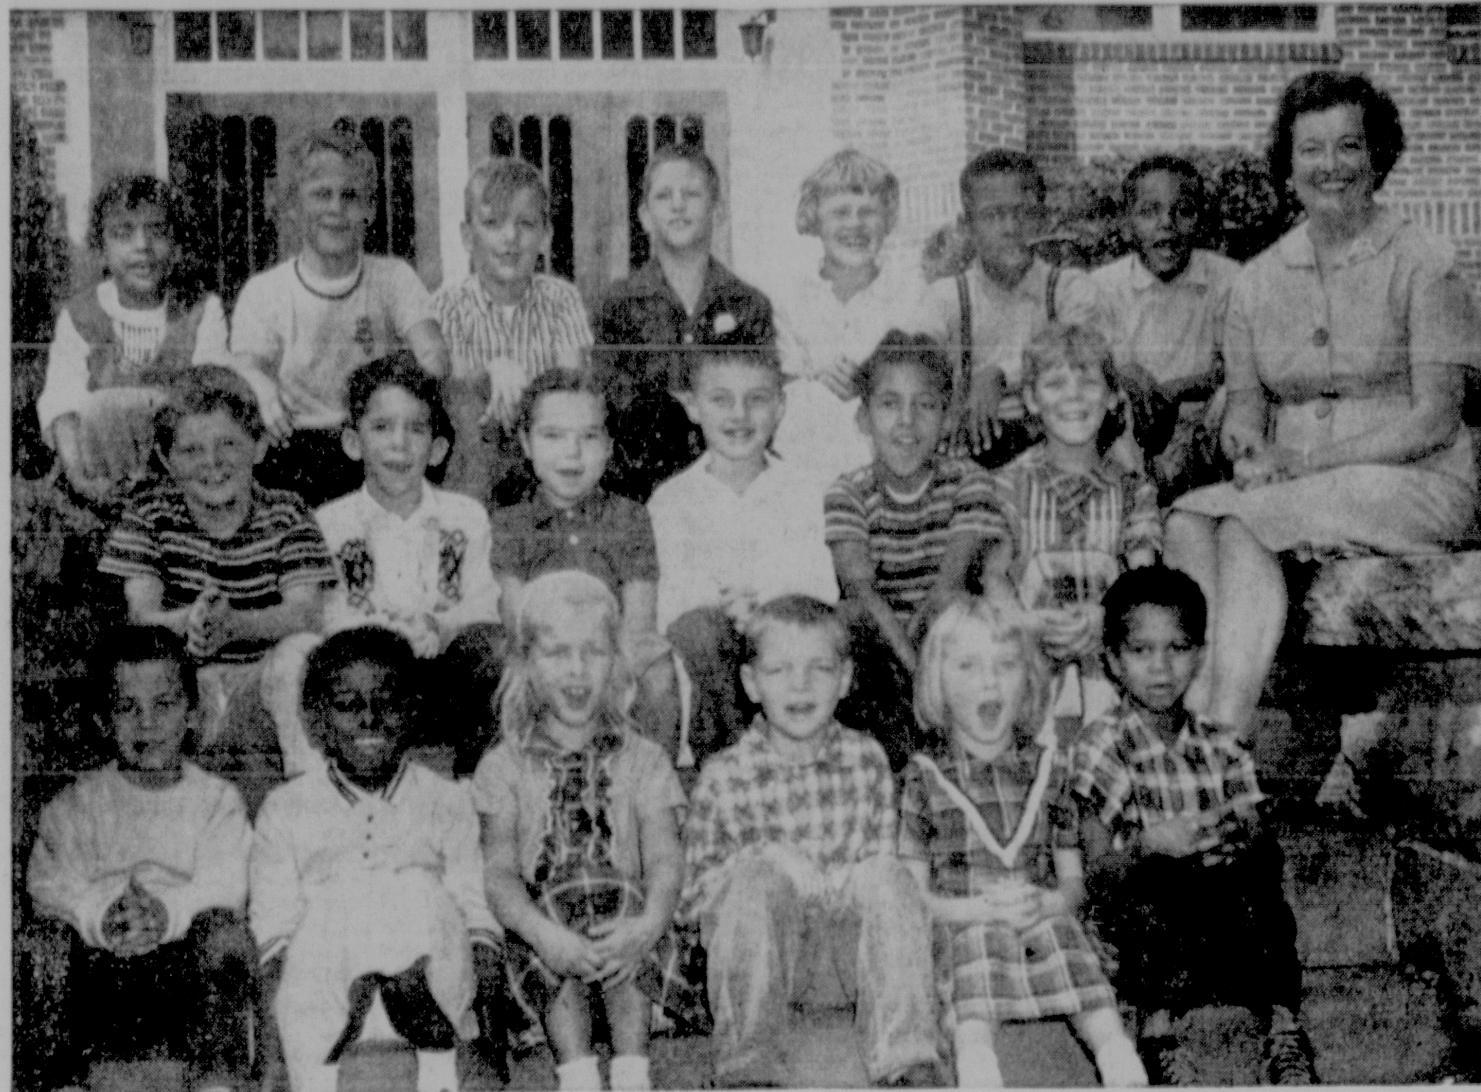

Behind The News — The Interior Department is restricting the use of public lands for agriculture in areas where the new federal conservation policy will be reflected in a series of departmental disapprovals of applications for homesteads in Western states where there has been a lack of rain. . . . President Kennedy's postal aides are going ahead with a long range program of automating the mails, which was started under the Eisenhower Administration. . . . The only change the officials now running the Post Office have made is to subject manpower-saving devices to hard tests of their feasibility. Also, the Post Office is making a study of standardization of envelope sizes, and Postmaster General Day is seriously considering imposing some restrictions in 1963. This move would permit the Post Office to make better use of automatic mail sorting machines. . . . A revised guide to foreign information sources is available for a quarter from the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, 1615 H Street, N.W., Washington 6, D.C. It contains addresses of foreign embassies and offices, nonprofit business organizations promoting commercial relations between the U.S. and other countries, international goodwill groups, and a bibliography of published material in the foreign information field.

Bid And Asked Prices

By William A. Doyle

Q. I have been buying shares of United Accumulative Fund, on a monthly investment basis, since 1956. To this day I have never been able to determine exactly what I would get if I sell my shares. I see that the newspaper quotes this and other mutual funds under "bid" and "asked" prices. Should the newspaper quotations help to know what my mutual fund shares are worth?

A. Indeed, they should. That's the reason they are printed.

The "asked" price of a mutual fund you see quoted in the newspaper is the price at which new shares of the fund are currently being offered to the public. The asked price is sometimes called the "offering price."

The asked price of each share of a mutual fund is equal to the asset value per share (the value behind each share) plus the commission charge per share.

That asked price is the price you will pay for each new share you buy.

The "bid" price is the price you will receive, if you redeem your shares. For most funds, the bid price per share is the asset value per share. Some funds do have a small "redemption fee," of about one percent. In those cases, the bid price per share is equal to the asset value per share, minus the redemption fee.

However, United Accumulative Fund does not have a redemption fee. So, the bid price per share you see quoted for that fund is the asset value of each share and the price you would receive for each share if you decide to cash in your shares by redeeming them.

You have been investing on a monthly accumulation plan. Each time you make an investment, you receive a confirmation slip, which shows the total number of shares you own.

Multiply the total number of shares you own by the bid price (the asset value per share) and you learn the total value of your investment.

Q. How often do mutual funds calculate the changes in their asset values per share?

A. Most mutual funds "price" their shares, as it's called in the trade, twice a day. Some do it only once a day.

A mutual fund does this by adding up the value of all its investments, its cash and all other assets, subtracting all its liabilities and, then, dividing by the total number of shares of the fund outstanding.

Q. I bought some stock last month. When I received my stock certificate, I noticed that, on the back where the corporate seal is affixed, it carried the name of a certain man as president. I happen to know that this man left the company six months ago. The company now has a new president. Is the stock certificate valid?

A. Sure, it is. Each company normally has a provision in its by-law to cover a situation such as this. After all, a company shouldn't dash out and change all its stock certificates every time a top officer (one whose facsimile signature appears on the stock certificates) leaves.

It costs money to print stock certificates. As a stockholder of this company, you should be interested in seeing that the company keeps its expenses down.

THE first Fire Auxiliary meeting of the season was held last Monday night at the home of the president, Mrs. Nelson Lightner, Sr. It was a time of reporting the summer's activities. The treasury had been enriched by earnings from serving dinner to the Monroe County Democratic Club; and, by a rummage sale held in Stroudsburg. The women decided to satisfy the popular demand and salt peanuts to sell. Orders may be given to Mrs. Lightner, Thursday night, November 16, a card party will be held at the home of the Auxiliary secretary, Mrs. Willard Kitchen; and any one who desires to make up a table to play is asked to notify Mrs. Kitchen. It was decided to discontinue the monthly dances held at the firehall each winter for young people. Since the men of the Chemical Hose Company hope to install baseboard radiation in the firehall, the secretary of the Auxiliary was directed to write to them asking a conference on repairs to the interior of the building in which the women might assist.

A new member, Mrs. Robert Jackson, was received into the organization. She invited the women to hold their November meeting at her home which is at the point of the Gap. At that time the by-laws of the Auxiliary will be read.

After the meeting, Mrs. Lightner, assisted by Mrs. Russell Shellenberger, served refreshments to Mrs. P. A. Rockefeller, Mrs. Harry Buzzard, Mrs. Robert Jackson, Mrs. Stephen Matos, Mrs. Willard Kitchen, Mrs. Elmendorf Runyon, Mrs. Helene Maier, Mrs. Donald Nase.

At the PTA meeting, held in the schoolhouse last Tuesday night, Mr. Walter Melnikoff, president of the Monroe County Council of PTA's was guest speaker. He spoke on "Educational Legislation" with emphasis on the theme "Winning the War in the Classroom."

During the business session, conducted by Mrs. Donald Nase, Mrs. Louis Smolak reported for the Banking Committee that thirty-four children have banked $100.00. The Ways & Means Committee, Mrs. Doris Bush and Mrs. Richard Wildoss, announced they are ordering candy for selling for the PTA. Mrs. Stephen Matos and Mrs. Walter Bishop were named to represent the local organization at the Curriculum meeting which was slated for October 19. Mrs. Wm. Fisher will attend a meeting of workers from other PTA's to plan the Union Founders' Day program. Mrs. Alyss Morton, a teacher at the local school, reported that she had ordered the film, "Dangerous Stranger" for showing at the January meeting. It was announced there will be no milk program for the school children as the two teachers do not have the time required to carry it out; and, it is too far for student teachers to come to distribute the milk.

After the meeting refreshments were served by Mrs. Donald Nase and Mrs. Franklin Drake.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Bischoff returned to their home on Broad Street the second week in October after spending the summer in Bavaria where Mr. Bischoff was born.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

What a pinwheel of color the whole weekend was for me—and I hope for you. Even in the mist the drive to Conyngham Valley was drenched with the colors of autumn—and the newspaper women's luncheon, held at Hazlet's new clubhouse at Valley Country Club was fascinating.

Not only because of the view across the valley and the super-modern clubhouse which replaced the one which burned down last year, but especially because of the people. There were old friends like our speaker Mrs. Hicks, grandmother of 24 and general handyman of the Dallas Post, who has acquired wit as well as wisdom.

And there were new ones like our hostess, Mrs. Derschuck, assistant publisher of the Hazlet Standard Sentinel. There are some ways women publishers have it all over men—Mrs. Derschuck had the most fascinating charm bracelet and she looked wonderful in the white orchid the newspaper women gave her.

From there to Late College, still bubbling from the excitement of the victory over Syracuse and with lines 50-long outside of the restaurants and every available room taken—except the ones the Sams had saved for us so that I could admire my new niece to my heart's content.

I'd forgotten how absorbing a three-week-old baby can be and wonder how mothers ever get anything else done but admire them. However, we did catch up on the news of some of the Monroe Countians who went to the game; at a rough estimate, about half of population.

Stopping for dinner on Sunday at Gus Genetti's we ran into one local group who had conflicting stories about how they had mislaid Henri Baldwin at the stadium. Her story is that they smoked out by the wrong gate; their stories, I won't repeat. Fortunately among any group of 45,000 people Henri's likely to know several hundred anyway, so she didn't have to walk all the way back to the motel.

We kept watch on the way home to see if they lost her again along the way, but we didn't see her so I guess they all got safely home. And I wish the same to all of you.

Skirts For Spring Are Disciplined

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON AP Fashion Writer

New York (AP) — Although curves are back, fashion sounded a sour note for those boys standing on the corner watching the girls go by.

Skirts that designer Jo Copeland introduced Tuesday to buyers at her spring fashion market show have been disciplined.

They are still short—knee-cap length. But they are not so narrow that girls sacrifice modesty while climbing aboard a bus; nor so voluminous they stop traffic in a March wind.

Even those suits and dresses with skirts pencil slim in front, have generous ones in back with deep pleats or inserts making room for long strides. Other skirt styles gather discriminately on waist bands. Her princess style sheaths that stick close to the body still flare out enough at the hemline for walking action.

If the designer has her way, there'll be no more mincing steps on the dance floor either. A glamour girl can do a polka in Jo Copeland's padded, tapered, bell skirts. Even her refined harem skirts are gathered full at the waist and are tucked at the hem to stay put. Thus she provides room for action without overdressing.

Hips can get away with an extra pound or two this spring, by Copeland's figure standards, but avoid pouts at the waistline will have to go. A far cry from the loose, easy, fitted look of last year, the Copeland costume not only hugs the body, it further emphasizes the midriff with wide cummerbunds.

A taboo color last year, navy blue is back in the garment district's good graces. Designer Copeland uses it abundantly, topping it with frothy white, or lining it with champagne, or buttoning it up with brass.

Giant bows at the neck, or one shoulder, or at the side; accented on pleated inserts; fabric laid through huge eyelets, and artificial flowers tucked here and there are other flirty design devices Copeland employs in her line for the Pattullo Fashion House.

But as for leg art, she won't allow much.

With this new attachment, priced at 68.00, and easily attached by our Jack LaBar to a BALDWIN spinet of any model, the organ immediately is lifted out of one's home or small church into a vast cathedral... Westminster, perhaps, sonically speaking. It's a matter of reverberation. One might wish to take the vibrations out of a washing machine or a refrigerator, but the very same thing that's awful in one type of possession, adds greatly to the charm of another. Frankly, I don't understand the principle of Panoramic Sound... it's just that there's a small dial on one side of the console that swings to two different positions. When Ernie plays normally, without using the attachment, the music is beautiful... rich... thrilling. You ask for nothing more. But when he swings the dial to the first setting, the sound suddenly deepens... the room seems to become larger. You are wrapped in sound that seems to come from everywhere. And it deepens, rounds, and mellows even more as he switches to the second position. You are no longer in a living room... a music store... or a little rural church. You are in a great cathedral, swept up in, and swathed in, sound. It is glorious!

Ernie tells me the Baldwin spinet, sale priced during our Big October Sale, is a 1565.00 organ. Complete with panoramic tone it is now being offered at just 1320.00. If your church needs an organ, now certainly is the time to buy. If you can afford one for your home, now again is the time to invest. And if you have a Baldwin spinet and love it, as you surely must, you can be assured that this newest innovation in sound can be yours. You too can have this amazing attachment, and Jack LaBar will be only too happy to make the installation. Hear it today!

Just a few moments ago on this busy Friday afternoon, the telephone rang and the Daily Record wanted to know whether or not there would be a Wyckoff Shopper column Monday. It seems everyone works in advance of deadlines these days... the newspaper makes up its pages long before the material is actually in hand, just as we at Wyckoff's begin working on sales such as our Big October Sale, months in advance.

As our president, Holt Wyckoff, pointed out on the air the other morning, a sale of this magnitude, does not happen overnight, or even in a matter of days. Several months in advance of deadline, our department heads are trekking the streets of New York, and telephoning far and wide, to locate the values they will offer you, the customer. A sale involves every employee actually. I often think, as I stand near our switchboard chatting with Dottie Dunn, that I'd love to have as pin money for a few months the amount spent on long distance telephone calls here in our store. Over the period of a few years, I am certain the amount would be staggering.

But my problem these days is finding time to write a column. There's much too much to see, and too few hours in which to actually chat about it all. Today, for instance, Ernie Michelfelder telephoned to say, "As soon as you've a free minute, I'd like to see you... come down." Frankly, I almost forgot, but when he reminded me, I went immediately and it was a breathtaking experience. Ernie wished to demonstrate a Baldwin spinet organ (now on sale in our music store) with the new Panoramic Tone attachment which had come in just the day before. It's phenomenal... just as unbelievable for the musician as for the listener.

With this new attachment, priced at 68.00, and easily attached by our Jack LaBar to a BALDWIN spinet of any model, the organ immediately is lifted out of one's home or small church into a vast cathedral... Westminster, perhaps, sonically speaking. It's a matter of reverberation. One might wish to take the vibrations out of a washing machine or a refrigerator, but the very same thing that's awful in one type of possession, adds greatly to the charm of another. Frankly, I don't understand the principle of Panoramic Sound... it's just that there's a small dial on one side of the console that swings to two different positions. When Ernie plays normally, without using the attachment, the music is beautiful... rich... thrilling. You ask for nothing more. But when he swings the dial to the first setting, the sound suddenly deepens... the room seems to become larger. You are wrapped in sound that seems to come from everywhere. And it deepens, rounds, and mellows even more as he switches to the second position. You are no longer in a living room... a music store... or a little rural church. You are in a great cathedral, swept up in, and swathed in, sound. It is glorious!

Ernie tells me the Baldwin spinet, sale priced during our Big October Sale, is a 1565.00 organ. Complete with panoramic tone it is now being offered at just 1320.00. If your church needs an organ, now certainly is the time to buy. If you can afford one for your home, now again is the time to invest. And if you have a Baldwin spinet and love it, as you surely must, you can be assured that this newest innovation in sound can be yours. You too can have this amazing attachment, and Jack LaBar will be only too happy to make the installation. Hear it today!

The Wyckoff Shopper

Wyckoff

Just a few moments ago on this busy Friday afternoon, the telephone rang and the Daily Record wanted to know whether or not there would be a Wyckoff Shopper column Monday. It seems everyone works in advance of deadlines these days... the newspaper makes up its pages long before the material is actually in hand, just as we at Wyckoff's begin working on sales such as our Big October Sale, months in advance.

As our president, Holt Wyckoff, pointed out on the air the other morning, a sale of this magnitude, does not happen overnight, or even in a matter of days. Several months in advance of deadline, our department heads are trekking the streets of New York, and telephoning far and wide, to locate the values they will offer you, the customer. A sale involves every employee actually. I often think, as I stand near our switchboard chatting with Dottie Dunn, that I'd love to have as pin money for a few months the amount spent on long distance telephone calls here in our store. Over the period of a few years, I am certain the amount would be staggering.

But my problem these days is finding time to write a column. There's much too much to see, and too few hours in which to actually chat about it all. Today, for instance, Ernie Michelfelder telephoned to say, "As soon as you've a free minute, I'd like to see you... come down." Frankly, I almost forgot, but when he reminded me, I went immediately and it was a breathtaking experience. Ernie wished to demonstrate a Baldwin spinet organ (now on sale in our music store) with the new Panoramic Tone attachment which had come in just the day before. It's phenomenal... just as unbelievable for the musician as for the listener.

With this new attachment, priced at 68.00, and easily attached by our Jack LaBar to a BALDWIN spinet of any model, the organ immediately is lifted out of one's home or small church into a vast cathedral... Westminster, perhaps, sonically speaking. It's a matter of reverberation. One might wish to take the vibrations out of a washing machine or a refrigerator, but the very same thing that's awful in one type of possession, adds greatly to the charm of another. Frankly, I don't understand the principle of Panoramic Sound... it's just that there's a small dial on one side of the console that swings to two different positions. When Ernie plays normally, without using the attachment, the music is beautiful... rich... thrilling. You ask for nothing more. But when he swings the dial to the first setting, the sound suddenly deepens... the room seems to become larger. You are wrapped in sound that seems to come from everywhere. And it deepens, rounds, and mellows even more as he switches to the second position. You are no longer in a living room... a music store... or a little rural church. You are in a great cathedral, swept up in, and swathed in, sound. It is glorious!

Dear Abby

Sit Back And Relax, Ma!

Dear Abby: I have a son who just finished college, and is about to enter a theological seminary. He has wanted to be a minister since he was 16. He is a good-looking, athletic, wholesome boy who has had an average social life.

He dislikes bold girls who wear sweaters and tight skirts, but he is now being chased by girls looking for marriage. It is the present custom for young men to marry before entering the seminary. Girls bombard him with phone calls, invitations to parties, etc. I do not want to offend the girls, but when I grew up, the men did the courting. Nothing will drive him to a celibate life sooner than aggressive girls. These girls are running him ragged. What can I do?

HIS MOTHER
Dear Mother: A young man with the obvious moral training and spiritual aspirations of your son does not need anyone to run interference for him. Relax, Mother. I have never heard of a boy who couldn't run faster than a girl in a tight skirt.

Dear Abby: We are four girls

Halloween Parade Plans Being Made

JOHN KUHN, Jaycee Halloween Parade chairman, has announced that plans for the 1961 parade are nearing completion.

Anyone desiring to enter floats in the parade is asked to register same by phoning Fred Knecht, HA 1-228 or John Kuhn, HA 1-8259. This will be necessary in order to be placed in the line of march.

Six drum and bugle corps have been invited to compete for $125.00 in prize monies. Also, the East Stroudsburg High School and Stroud Union High School bands will participate in the parade.

A list of awards to be announced later.

Anyone desiring to enter the parade as a mummer, and also the float builders, are asked to keep the theme of the parade in mind when selecting their attire. In keeping with the theme there will be a special award for the mummer or float most closely depicting the theme.

The parade is to be held Tuesday, October 31, at 7 p.m.

who would like to know how old a girl should be before she can (1) Shave her legs. (2) Wear make-up. (3) Go in cars with boys.
Dear P. C. L. and J.: Girls can do the above-mentioned things when their own mothers decide they are ready. It is up to each mother to make these decisions for her own daughter.

Dear Abby: Am I wrong in thinking that my husband should not receive love letters from his ex-wife? He thinks it is all right because that's the only way he can find out how his children are. He divorced her for reasons you couldn't even put in the paper — but now that he is married to me, to hear him tell it, there was never a finer woman than her. I can't have any children for him, and I think that's probably why he is so mean and spiteful. What can I do? It's not my fault. I am 28 and he is 33.

DOWN-HEARTED
Dear Down-Hearted: "Having children" isn't the special privilege of a few. You are young enough to adopt a family. Why not consider it?

Confidential to Bruce: Don't marry for money. You can borrow it cheaper.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A group opposed to capital punishment will conduct a silent vigil Sunday at the state office building here in protest against the scheduled execution of Arthur G. Schuck.

The group is called "Members of the Pittsburgh Friends." A spokesman said the protest will be aimed against the "hard-hearted attitudes which permit infliction of the death penalty as a solution to society's problems."

Schuck, 44, of Baden, Beaver County, is to die in the electric chair Monday for a 1958 rifle slaying.

Governor To Dedicate New Section Of Thruway Today

A SIGNIFICANT step toward easing of traffic congestion in the Stroudsburgs—and throughout the Pocono Mountains—will take place at 10 o'clock this morning with formal dedication of the final two links of the Stroudsburg Thruway.

The 1.6-mile section to be dedicated today has been under construction for almost three years. The contract was awarded to J. H. Beers, Inc., on Dec. 30, 1958.

In itself, the thruway is important. It will remove from the business districts of Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg much of the through traffic—including heavy trucks—which often clog the business districts of the twin boroughs.

But, in the longer view, the thruway is most important as a vital link between this area, New York City and the north and west. The three sections of the thruway leading from the Delaware River Toll Bridge to the outskirts of Stroudsburg will be part of a nationwide system of interstate highways.

To localize the situation a bit more, when current plans of the Pennsylvania Dept. of Highways are completed, Monroe County will have a network of high speed, four-lane, limited access highways spreading to the north, west and south.

The continuation of the Stroudsburg Thruway, formally known as Interstate Route 80, is already under construction to Crescent Lake. At that point, it will continue west as the Keystone Shortway and north as the Penn-Can Highway, connecting at the Canadian border with that country's national road system.

In addition, at a recent meeting of officials from Pennsylvania and New Jersey, discussion was held on a means of getting the Garden State to speed its widening of Route 46 which will carry traffic from the Delaware Toll Bridge to New York City.

It is hoped that both the Keystone Shortway and the New Jersey work on Route 46 can be completed by 1964 when New York City holds its World's Fair.

Eventually, of course, the Keystone Shortway will be part of a highway which will provide a direct—and significantly shorter—route from New York to San Francisco.

What will it mean to this area? For one thing, more visitors to area resorts. For another, more industry desirous of locating near high speed traffic routes, but away from city congestion. For a third, more summer homes for city-weary residents who still have to maintain their city contacts during vacations.

It is to be hoped that literally thousands of Monroe County residents will turn out for this morning's program and to welcome Gov. David L. Lawrence and the host of dignitaries from both Pennsylvania and New Jersey who will attend.

Let's show them that Monroe County appreciates what has been done so far for it—and that it hopes for additional cooperation in the future.

The many folks who are inquiring about the condition of little Gale Staples, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Staples, who was injured when crossing a highway to the school bus, will be delighted to know that the week-end found her doing very well. She is in the East Stroudsburg General Hospital and can enjoy any cards sent to her by her little friends.

Peter Kirschner returned, Friday, to his duties in the Air Force after spending some time with his mother Mrs. Otto Kirschner who was recently widowed. It is good news to his mother and friends here to hear that Peter has been transferred to the Air Base at Newburgh, N. Y.

The Christian and Missionary Alliance prayer group had a social time after their meetings the past two Wednesdays. The first was in honor of the wedding anniversary of Rev. and Mrs. H. B. Hostetter. The second marked the birthdays of Mrs. Fred Crimbring and Miss Nellie Burd.

DEDICATION SITE on the Thruway this morning at 10 is the bridge which carries the road over Brodheads Creek. Looking east, the Prospect St. bridge shows in the middle distance and the Spinner home on the hill beyond.

Bangor Used Extra Power To Defeat Coplay

By ARMON WILLIAMS
Daily Record Sports Writer

THE Slaters of Bangor High used power-plus in downing the Wildcats of Coplay High on the field Saturday afternoon 26-0.

Although Coach DaKey Prehlaad of the Slaters is still without the services of three varsity players, Bill Yeager, halfback; Brian Copley, quarterback; and Ned Oer, end, the bench played most of the game Saturday.

Danny Caracio, halfback, did the majority of the scoring for the Slaters, as Leo Reimer, his running mate, was rested. Caracio got off on three scoring drives as he counted on runs of 18, 17 and 38 yards. Reimer, the only other touchdown marker for the Slaters, was the first into paydirt territory, as he countered with an eight yard end sweep. Shorty Heard kicked two out of four of the placement attempts.

Minutes after the opening kickoff Bangor had drawn first blood. Copley took the opening kickoff and after failing to gain, kicked out to the 46, where the Slaters started the go-ahead march. Caracio made it a first down on the home team's thirty; Ron Bet and Reimer combined for a first down on the 20. Caracio and Bet lugged to the eight and from there Reimer carried over end for the touchdown. Heard's placement was blocked.

Following the kickoff Bangor got possession on the Coplay 45, when Gary Vaughn, Bangor guard gathered in a Wildcat fumble. Caracio and Bet made it a first down on the 27; Bet and Reimer added nine more yards before Caracio picked his way over tackle for 18 yards and the first of his three go-ahead runs of the afternoon. Bangor failed on the extra point via running. Copley was unable to get any kind of a running or passing game in force but did recover a blocked Slater punt on the Bangor 10 yard line; only to relinquish the pigskin several plays later on the Bangor nine. From this point the Slaters drove 91 yards to score their third touchdown of the afternoon.

Longest Drive
Bangor used the grinding game in its drive as it amassed four first downs in its longest drive of the afternoon. With the entire backfield alternating in the carries, the Slaters were on the Coplay three when a holding penalty was assessed against them, setting them back to the 18. On the next play Dan Caracio broke over left tackle, cut to the inside and dashed the distance to score. Heard place kicked the extra point and the Slaters were out front 19-0.

With minutes to go in the first half, the Bangorians got control of the leather again, this time at the Coplay 40 but the clocked stopped the trek to paydirt.

Coplay held the ball for the ball on the Bangor 48. Reimer ran for a first down on the Coplay 42 and Bet added another five yards. With the ball on the Coplay 38, Caracio again with a tackle cut-back went the distance, as he ran away from the Wildcat secondary to score his greater part of the third quarter as it played possession football. However, the Slaters finally had their way and gained the third touchdown of the afternoon. Heard place-kicked the extra point with Jim Parsons holding. The sophomore place-kicking drive now has a better than 800 average for the season.

With second and third stringers being used freely, the Slaters operated with a spotty offensive during the final quarter and although they contained the Coplay forces were unable to mount any worth while scoring threat.

The Slaters will entertain the Blue Eagles of Nazareth on the Bangor Park Field Friday evening in Bangor's annual homecoming contest.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day if it is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left or right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
